I followed the instructions for the Javascript SDK to get a token, save it in cookies, then access that cookie and use it to authorize the user on Facebook. It works on desktop, but not on mobile. Why? A: If you are using strict mode, then this restriction applies, as you are trying to access the Facebook.com domain (see The work-around is to setup a Facebook App, the App calls a domain on your server, and you use the App access token to get the required permissions. Once the user is logged in, your server can make the page request. You can also use the App Access Token to get the required permissions on behalf of the user using the 'Authorize.Facebook' javascript sdk. 1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a printing apparatus which prints on sheets. 2. Related Background Art An ink jet printer is well known as an example of the printing apparatus. The ink jet printer has a structure in which ink is ejected from a print head to a sheet, and predetermined printing is performed on the sheet. In a general ink jet printer, the sheet is fed manually by hand, or by a sheet feeding roller. A discharge roller is also provided so
