MDS Manager creates lightweight models that allow you to view and edit Master Data MDS Manager can be used to manage Master Data that is stored in an Entity Library (currently that means that you have to have the MSC) A: SQL Server Management Studio (SSMS) has a built in tool called Model Development: When you select Model Development from the Tools menu: SSMS will open up a dialog box where you can select one or more models and then click OK. Of course, you would need to have both (the model you want to modify, and the target database) running on your machine. You may need to alter the data type definitions if the model only represents a subset of the actual data in the database. See the above question, and the Microsoft site here: Neuropsychological evaluation of children with hydrocephalus. Thirty-six children who were at least 8 years of age and had a diagnosis of hydrocephalus were given various standardized neuropsychological tests. The group as a whole was found to be significantly impaired on measures of spatial visualization, fine-motor coordination, verbal and language memory, and visuo-spatial memory. No differences were found between the older and younger children, between patients of different etiologies, or between patients with ventriculomegaly and those with communicating hydrocephalus. A possible explanation for these findings is that spatial problems are more evident in children who require rather frequent blood sampling, whose pharmacotherapy requires fine coordination, or whose parents have a limited vocabulary.A former Chatsworth police officer was convicted of 25 counts of obscenity for his online voyeuristic activities. Chatsworth police Sgt. Kenneth Marston, 64, of Chatsworth was arrested in August 2012 after a couple complained he surreptitiously filmed a woman in the act of having sex with a man at the Oro Chico Motel in La Crescenta. Marston was charged with voyeurism after California's statute criminalizing that conduct went into effect in 1995. Marston was found guilty Tuesday by a Superior Court jury of 25 counts of violating the state's obscene-materials law. He was acquitted on two counts and the jury deadlocked on seven others, according to Deputy District Attorney Robert Morrissey. �
