Q: How can I hide the "Connexion" link to the chat room? I know there is a way to hide the chat room link: ...but how can I do this for the title of the room? The regular "Edit" link does not seem to do the job. A: This post on Meta Stack Overflow suggests that `![new chatroom]/[room name]` is the syntax to use instead of `[room name]`. The Show/Hide Chat Room post should also be updated to include this information.

Q: the origin of the real part of a sinh function the sine function is pretty well-known, but I haven't found a good explanation of

This week, we're joined by Proofreader Rob (pronounced "roob") (To draw our attention to Rob's contribution, he's added a Bold tag to this post to help identify his editorial comments.

How did Proofreader Rob get started with Pathfinder?

I started playing Dungeons and Dragons in 1983 with my friends Kevin, Leslie and Paul. Most of them were avid D&D players (having played since the mid 1970s), but I had never played it. I wanted to have fun and learn more about the game that had been causing a stir at the time among the players.

What made you decide to start proofing books?

I picked up a 1981 AD&D game guide and took notes from it. I wanted to learn the rules and wanted a good group of people to play with. For -One player controls the character with the left arm and the other controls the character with the right. -Two characters are placed on opposite sides of a screen. -The players must work together to complete levels.-At the start of a level the characters will be initially uncomfortable to one another, and players will be unable to use their power together. -The characters will eventually grow closer as the game progresses. -The players can change their view and increase or decrease their intimacy by pressing the triangle button.-In order to complete levels, players must coordinate their actions- A wordless text-based level is displayed on the screen that is meant to be read out loud to the other player. - Players must move through the level as the text indicates- Occasionally, a game mechanic is introduced that is meant to be worked through together, and used through the course of the game.-The ultimate goal of With You is for both players to become closer to one another. In the VR game, you will be able to make new progress towards closeness. In the traditional game, the partners will be able to visit the same memory once or twice more by sharing the items collected through their puzzles. Each partner will be able to unlock and view the other partner's items, just like you would in a regular game of Tetris. Trial & Error (or, The alpha and the omega)Trial & Error is a tiny little freeware game made for lovers of spatial and algorithmic games. The gameplay centers around the interaction between two people, something I find particularly fascinating. My favorite example of this is in the exchange between Chloe and Leo in the first of the game's levels. You'll see what I mean. The level starts out with the pair separated by a distance that requires Chloe to climb over a series of obstacles. Once she crosses the final hurdle, the level comes to a close and she is immediately instructed to "find the love letter". You will see where I'm going with this. Chloe's objective in this level is to simply walk as close as possible to the letter that's hanging off of the ledge where the player is currently positioned. She only has to move one tile in the desired direction in order to grab the letter, or she can choose to ignore the letter and continue walking towards Leo. If Chloe ignores the letter, she can continue towards Leo for a small amount of bonus points. If she grabs the letter, she and Leo will begin to orbit each other and gain points for

but I don't drink any soda when I am soaking in a tub. I enjoy butter and lemon or mint. I'm a clean eater that loves chocolate. I also have three kids and work full time, but I make health a priority and enjoy every moment of it in life. Feel free to take a behind-the-scenes look at our photo shoot... 1. What inspired you to start the blog? Starting the blog was a random idea. When I was a little girl, I couldn't wait for a magazine to come out so I could read everything in it. I don't think that's completely gone, but it's a little different now. I started thinking, if there is anything I can do to help other girls to love themselves, if there is anything I can do to help other girls to embrace their womanhood, that would be a great gift to me. And that's where this blog began to brew. 2. What do you like most about your blog? I really like knowing that girls are finding me. Whether they're reading on the couch at home, in the bathroom, on the bus, at the gym, at work, in their living rooms, in a Starbucks, wherever, I think it's great to know girls all over the world are viewing my site and finding me and reading this blog. I love the comments and encouragement that so many girls have left for me. I love that the sponsors are just amazing and fun. I love that you can find me and the world of good in this site. I love that I get to share my own personal story. I love that I write about topics that aren't really touched upon in so many women's magazines, or if they do they're not presented in such an honest, pure, feminine way. I just love it all. 3. What is something that you're constantly striving to improve? Being a mom. This job is so overwhelming at times, but I love it. I think that I have the best job. I love being a mom to three girls and being able to see the love that I have in my home for my husband. I love being able to put on this blessed face and go to work each day. 4. If you were stranded on a desert island with a Barbie doll, what would you name your baby girl? I have no idea. I just really want my kids to be happy with a name. I honestly don't think I would name her anything extravagant though.

----- Cadets are the elite soldiers of the golden space invaders. They have made contact with the human civilization and are currently preparing for the introduction to human society. The information is used for military and space science purposes. Besides, there is a huge secret which is kept out of sight for more than 70 years, still with no clue about what it is. Everyone has a mission. The Cadets were tasked with chasing down a fleeing enemy ship on Earth in 1956. Little did they know that the ship would crash and make some priceless items fall into the hands of their new human friends. Eight years later, the Cadets are forced to prepare for an invasion of Earth by an alien race who are a lot more ruthless and dangerous than the last one. As it turns out, an entire alien race was watching Earth from space for decades. They became obsessed with the land of plains and forests, and waited patiently until it was time for an invasion. The invasion force will not stop until it has full control of the planet. Cadets will play as either a girl or a boy. There are 16 missions: 5 main missions and 11 sub-missions. There is also free space battle online.

Gladys M. West Gladys M. West (September 27, 1916 - October 31, 2002) was the first black American to be granted a US patent. Her patent, filed in 1957, was for a head rest designed to help pilots avoid noise-induced hearing loss. Biography West was born Gladys Whitson in Los Angeles, the daughter of Annie Whitson, a seamstress. Her mother died when she was three, and thereafter she was raised by her grandmother. West was a child prodigy who graduated from high school when she was only 14. She attended Los Angeles City College but was encouraged to leave by her grandmother, as she found the courses irrelevant to her future career. Instead, West worked variously as a stenographer, a telephone solicitor, and a file clerk at age 16. She married Jeremiah West in 1941. She found work at a defense factory and took her husband's last name, becoming Gladys West. After the war, she worked as a seamstress at Filene's department store in Boston, where she became friends with a group of black women interested in dance. After her husband's death in 1953, she decided that she wanted to devote her life to helping people. She chose to work for the
